The Senate

Periodically the Senate of Canada places its veto on important legislation which has received the approval of the elected representatives of the people sitting in the House of Commons. The exercise of this power of veto only occurs when the political complexion of the majority in the Senate is different to that of the majority in the Commons—a significant fact which would seem to indicate that the majority of Senators are more inclined to play party politics than they are to adopt that high and impartial attitude which the Fathers of Confederation designed the Senate should assume as a proper and necessary safeguard to hasty, ill-considered and partisan action of the Commons.

As a rule, the exercise of the veto power by the Senate is followed by an outburst of indignation throughout the country, and a filip is given to the never quite dead demand for reform of the constitution of the Senate, and by extremists for its abolition. People in the mass are, however, long suffering, and these waves of indignation usually die down with nothing in the direction of reform being accomplished.

It is too much to hope that the recent action of the Senate in rejecting the whole programme of the Great Railways for branch line construction will not be so easily and quickly forgotten, but, on the contrary, a definite, energetic and persistent public demand for reform of the Senate will be inaugurated and carried to a successful conclusion?

The Senate of Canada as at present constituted is about the most useless governmental and legislative body in the world. It is a wholly irresponsible body, absolutely undemocratic, yet possessed of great power which it does not hesitate on occasion to wield in the most senseless and autocratic manner. Its reform is not a matter of partisan politics, but of national politics in the broadest meaning of that term.

When endeavoring to meet the many objections and solve the great difficulties which stood in the way of Confederation more than half a century ago, the Senate was devised in order to provide the smaller and less populous Provinces which some safeguard against undue and unjust action by the Commons controlled by representatives elected on a basis of population by the larger Provinces. It was therefore provided that, regardless of population, Ontario should have 24 Senators, Quebec 24, and the Maritime Provinces 24, that these Senators must be possessed of certain personal qualifications to assure that they be men of substance and standing in their respective Provinces, and that they be appointed for life in order to remove them from the influence of partisan considerations. And for more than fifty years the constitution of the Senate has remained unchanged except that, with the creation of new Provinces in the West, the territory from and including Manitoba to the Pacific coast was constituted a fourth Senatorial area, each of the four Western Provinces being accorded six Senators.

Despite changing conditions and the growth of democratic government the world over, and notwithstanding that the original reason for so constituting the Senate has passed, nothing has been done to bring the Senate into conformity with present-day sentiment and needs. The powers of the British House of Lords have been restricted by the march of progress, but not so the Senate of Canada. The Privileges of Canada do not need a Senate today to protect them; rather the Provinces now require the introduction of reforms to protect them from an irresponsible and autocratic Senate.

Apart altogether from the issues involved in the recent action of the Senate on the C.N.R. branch line construction policy, and its treatment of legislation arising out of the report of the Halston Commission which investigated the grievances of returned soldiers—important as they unquestionably are, there remains the great principle and the vital national interest to be settled as to whether a body over which the people have absolutely no control shall be continued to defy the expressed wishes and desires of the Canadian electorate.

The question might just as well be faced and settled now before any further damage to Canada's continued progress and welfare is done rather than to again defer it. While admittedly population of a Province should not be the determining factor in Senate representation, it is nevertheless inconceivable that practically one-half of the Dominion, extending from the Great Lakes to the Pacific is going to be content for all time to a representation only equal to that accorded the restricted area of the three small Maritime Provinces, and conferred upon each of the individual Provinces of Ontario and Quebec.

Without assuming to call in question the wisdom of the constitution as drafted in 1867, which probably was wise and necessary at that time, there can be no hesitation in declaring that in this day it is antiquated, obsolete and even dangerous. It should be amended without delay if Canada is to avoid the development of a situation wherein it may be found extremely difficult to find a satisfactory solution without endangering Confederation itself.

After observing the antics of some of the members of the Senate, sometimes a bachelor lives long folks the theory that men descended enough to feel sorry for the man who from the monkey seems less ridiculous the girl with whom he was in love.

Giant Parachute Invented

New Safety Device Will Lessen Danger For Airplanes

Attention is being directed again to the carrying of parachutes in aeroplanes. It has been stated that if the occupants of the air express which crashed in France recently had had parachutes, the lives of some of them would have been saved, writes an air correspondent.

Types of parachutes are being tested by the Air Ministry, and every new war plane now being produced has provision for parachutes.

Parachutes tested have shown themselves more than 90 per cent. efficient, but the tests are directed to finding a "100 per cent. efficient" parachute.

A new safety idea is being investigated in regard to big commercial air-expresses, etc.

Instead of issuing a parachute to each individual traveller it is suggested that in the event of a mishap the passenger saloon should be capable of immediate detachment from the structure of the aeroplane and left to the support of a specially designed parachute of exceptionally large size.

Mr. E. R. Callirop, the inventor, has produced and submitted to the authorities a device by which, within less than four seconds from the moment when the pilot pulls a lever, the cabin containing its passengers is freed from the machine and is parachute-borne in safety to the earth.

Columbia University President Gives An Interesting Interview On Anglo-U. S. Relations

Shortly after his arrival in England to deliver the Watson Chair lectures at British universities, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University, gave The London Times the following interview:

In my judgment, it is far wiser and more helpful to take satisfaction and even intimate relations between the United States and Great Britain for granted than to be constantly debating them in public and acting as if something particularly bad is to be done to improve them. As a matter of fact, there is always in the United States an element sharply critical to England. This goes back to the eighteenth century and in particular to the sharp differences that grew up in the United States over the French Revolution and the respective policies and influences of England and France at that time. Every one knows what distances there have been in the interval which have added some fuel to this flame; but if one will take pains to read the volume in which the late Professor William A. Dunning treated the relations between England and America for the hundred years following the Treaty of Ghent, he will see how slight a part, after all, these influences making for friction and for antagonism have played.

Deep down in the American heart there is profound respect for the civilization and the ideal of English policy. When something gross or disagreeable is said it is almost always due either to the temperament of some individual or to some passing event which has been given an emphasis out of all relation to its real importance.

The settlement of the Irish question removed the one real basis of anti-English agitation in the United States. Today almost every important American of Irish descent is open and emphatic in his expression of satisfaction with the erection of the Irish Free State. It will not be possible again to stir any anti-English feeling in America on the basis of the wrongs of Ireland.

A just cause of complaint on the part of England was the unbecoming character of some of the passages that used to be found in school textbooks on American history. Some authors had thought it necessary to illustrate their patriotism by casting upon England slurs that were both unfair and historically untrue. Matters of this sort are being steadily corrected, and the history of the United States is year by year being presented to the rising generation in a more scientific, a more broad-minded and a fairer spirit than ever before. After making all due allowance for the exuberance of patriotism, it is really not necessary for the school children of one country to be taught to dislike those of another simply because their respective governments have had sharp differences in the past.

Every American who is familiar with the facts is intensely proud of the way in which England has faced her post-war social, economic and financial problems. We well know the tremendous sufferings and losses of England in the war and we find it little short of amazing that she is able to bear the heavy burden of taxation necessary to meet her obligations and to begin the reduction of her colossal public debt. This is a triumph, not only of sound statesmanship, but of sound public opinion.

Some Comparisons

Senator Cope land, of New York, says that it takes 63 dozen eggs to pay a New York plasterer to hang for eight hours' work, that 17 bushels of corn are required for a brick-layer's day. The painter gets the equivalent of 25 chickens, the plumber gets the equivalent of 43 pounds of butter, or the output of a hog for eight months of feeding; a hog will pay a carpenter one day's wage. These comparisons show that something is wrong in the constitution of industry and agriculture.—Toronto Mail and Empire.

Important Experiments

Solar Cameras to Photograph the Sun's Eclipse

In the hope of determining whether there is motion within the corona during an eclipse of the sun, a party of American scientists, under the direction of Dr. John A. Miller, of Swarthmore College, is preparing to conduct a series of important experiments from the top of a high mountain in Central Mexico next September.

A year or more has been required to complete the arrangements, and the actual working time of the scientists will be only 100 seconds, the duration of the eclipse. If the day should be cloudy, all the labor and expense of preparation will have gone for naught.

The largest photographic instruments ever made for solar observation will be placed in position.

There are two cameras, in order that two pictures may be taken at the time for checking purposes. The aperture of each is 6.5 inches and the focal length is 15 feet. The impressions will be made on the finest plate glass, each plate being 18x18 inches, specially prepared for this work by experts. It is probable that not more than two photographs can be taken owing to the brief period when the face of the sun will be obscured. A dozen or more plates will be taken along, however, in order that every emergency may be met.

Civic Motor Camp

With a greatly increased motor tourist traffic to Brandon this year, improvements are being made to the civic motor camp, electric lights being installed, ground being made available and other additions being effected for the comfort of visitors. The increasing popularity of the district to motor travellers has resulted in a programme of $70,000 expenditure on local roads.

The Premier At Harvard

Hon. Mackenzie King Gets Honorary Degree From American University

The bestowal of the honorary degree of LL.D. upon the Right Hon. Mackenzie King by Harvard University is a signal tribute to the Prime Minister and an honor to Canada as well. Harvard, the oldest and, in many respects, the foremost of American universities, does not confer its degrees with such liberality as to cheapen their value, and in recognizing the attainments and position of the head of the Canadian Government, it has done so for solid and sufficient reasons. However Canadians may differ from Mr. King in politics and may be disposed to question his direction of public affairs, they acknowledge his earnestness and industry as a student of social and economic questions and the brilliance of his scholastic career. His university training was exceptionally broad and extensive, and he holds degrees from the Universities of Toronto, Chicago and Harvard, apart from that which is now added to an imposing list. Harvard, in honoring the Prime Minister of Canada, extends at the same time appropriate recognition to the work of one of its own collegiate sons, one who has played no inconsiderable part in national and international affairs, who holds the leadership of a great political party and has risen to the highest office in the gift of his country. The honor conferred is, in these circumstances, no empty one and is no less a deserved tribute than an expression of personal and international courtesy.—The Montreal Gazette.

Big Lumber Cut

A substantial increase, amounting to about 63,000,000 feet, was produced in the lumber mills in the Ottawa Valley last year, when for the first time since 1918, the lumber production of the mills in the district exceeded 200,000,000 feet.

Ottawa is one of the principal lumbering centres in Canada. Large quantities of pulp and paper are also made in the mills on the banks of the Ottawa River.

Corn And Sunflowers Grown To Advantage As A Substitute For Bare Fallow

When considered from the standpoint of relative productive cost and suitability for winter feed, the growing of corn and sunflowers can be undertaken to advantage over a much wider area than is the case at the present time. Such crops work in well, especially in systems of farming where provision must be made for cleaning the land. In the western provinces it has been found necessary to summer-fallow. This practice aids in the destruction of weeds and tends to conserve soil moisture. As a substitute for part of the bare fallow such intertilled crops as these have distinct possibilities in many districts.

Experiments show that wheat requires nearly twice as much water to produce a pound of dry matter as corn; hence its value as a crop in districts of low rainfall as a substitute for summerfallow. Sunflowers draw somewhat more heavily on soil moisture than does corn. Each of these crops possesses characteristics which establish the preference for either in a district. It has been found that sunflowers will withstand more frost than corn; thus they can be planted earlier and harvested later, in case the crop has not matured sufficiently to make a good quality of silage. Both crops have extensive root systems, they feed deeply and require a liberal supply of moisture to make maximum growth. Corn and sunflowers utilize moisture throughout the entire summer, the former crop being able to withstand periods of continued drought better than sunflowers. While the moisture supply is a decidedly important factor and contributes greatly to the satisfactory growth of these crops, the yield of corn and sunflowers are not in proportion to the rainfall. It must, therefore, be borne in mind that climatic conditions and cultural practices exert a controlling influence on crop yields.

When growing corn and sunflowers on the Illustration Station in Alberta and Saskatchewan, which for the most part are in the southern part of the provinces, the land is fall-plowed, or spring-plowed and packed prior to planting. If manure is available, apply it at the rate of ten tons per acre in order to cover as much of the land as possible. As corn requires a warm, moist seed bed, sunflowers can be planted earlier as they do not suffer so severely from slight frosts. On the stations last spring, corn planting was general from May 25 to 31. Sunflowers may be planted two weeks earlier. When planting, the grain drill is used, blocking the necessary drills to render the rows the desired distance apart. While from thirty-six to forty-two inches is found a satisfactory distance between the rows, this distance should be regulated somewhat by the cultivator one has on hand. By removing some of the cultivator teeth and by having the rows adjusted properly it is often possible to do the work without additional outlay for machinery. The Giant Russian sunflowers and North Western Dent corn are the varieties planted on the stations. Difficultly is often experienced in keeping weeds out of the rows. If the land is harrowed crosswise with the drag harrows once before the corn comes up, and frequently afterwards, a great many weeds will be destroyed. This harrowing may be done until the crop is six inches high. After this it will be necessary to cultivate between the rows at such intervals as will keep down weed growth. If weeds are allowed to grow, the sheaves of growing such crops as a substitute for summerfallow, will not be realized. As corn makes a shallow, lateral root growth, at first, care must be taken not to cultivate too deeply close to the plants, as these feeders will be cut off and growth delayed. Corn should be put into the soil before the first frost and sunflowers when the seeds are in the milk stage.

Eleven of the Illustration Station operators filled trench silos this year and had excellent results from them. These silos varied in size between seven and eight feet deep, ten and fourteen feet wide and twenty and thirty-six feet long. The length varied with the quantity of crops available for silage purposes. These were opened out with a team and scraper at a cost of from twenty-five to thirty-two dollars each, depending on the size. On fifteen Dominion Illustration Stations in Alberta and Saskatchewan corn was produced at an average of $4.52 per ton, and on nine stations sunflowers were grown for $4.20 per ton, average. Results from the Brandon Experimental Station show that the yields of wheat on corn land have exceeded those on summerfallow by an average of 5.5 bushels per acre for six years. It would, therefore, seem that the growing of corn and sunflowers as a substitute for part of the bare fallow has distinct advantages and might be undertaken with profit by many grain farmers who keep a certain number of livestock.

Predict Lower Cost For Insulin

Says Drug Can Be Obtained From Vegetables

Some of the components of insulin, a recently-developed drug, which were obtained heretofore only from animal and fish pancreas, may be obtained from long grass, onion tops and other vegetable matter. Dr. J. B. Collip, of the University of Alberta, Canada, one of the discoverers of the drug, told the members of the American Medical Association at San Francisco.

Other speakers expressed the opinion that this enlargement of the insulin field would mean its increased production, and at a lower cost to the practitioner and patient, for its use in combating diabetes.

Export Surplus Butter

The Saskatchewan Cooperative Creameries, Limited, has just completed arrangements, whereby all of its exportable butter output, during the summer months will be shipped to Great Britain. This will involve shipping between two and three million pounds of butter.

CANADIAN SHRINES OF HISTORIC VALUE

Travellers to Europe generally spend a great deal of their time in visiting churches and shrines; those who travel to the Far East make it a point to see as many temples as time and route will permit. Yet, many of these tourists are quite ignorant that Canada has many churches and shrines whose beginnings date from while man's advent on this continent. The one most widely known is that of Ste. Anne de Beauséjour in Quebec, celebrated since 1607 for its reputed miraculous cures. The main church which was burned last year is being rebuilt, the service being carried on during the interim in the chapels. To Ste. Anne's each summer vast pilgrimages wind their way and the tiny hillside village overflows with throngs of reverent pilgrims, while booths for the sale of holy relics are set up all over the place. A visit to this shrine at any time will be fraught with interest, for the hourly services, the great gold figure of Ste. Anne and the holy relics are always in evidence. Ste. Anne's is easily reached from Quebec. For years Evangeline Land in Nova Scotia, has attracted many, especially the descendants of the Acadians who were banished from this lovely valley in 1755. The large, church and a primitive buildings mentioned in Longfellow's poem, still remain, and now the little stone church of Ste. Charles has been re-created in its original size and form by the Société L'Assomption as a shrine to the memory of their ill-fated ancestors. Annual pilgrimages have been arranged and Grand Pre will soon become a Mecca for devout Catholics as well as an attraction for painters, poets and lovers of Evangeline.

One may scarcely travel a block in old Quebec without passing a church and each of them has an interesting history. One of the plainest is Notre Dame des Victoires in an out-of-the-way square. It was built in 1690 to celebrate the French victory over Philipps. It rests on the site of Champlain's little Abbatiale and under its floor sleep four early French governors.

At Tadoussac still stands an old Jesuit chapel built in 1746 on the site of a church dating from 1615. Throughout Eastern Canada are reminders of the canoodled soldiers of the Cross who bulled so well in the new world.

The many churches of Montreal's east end will repay visiting—they are rich in historical lore as well as in vestments, art and jewels. Everywhere are convents and monasteries whose nuns, monks and priests, gliding quietly through the public streets, lend a note of mystery and romance to the local atmosphere.

"So far as I have been informed, Wade is confined at Coyote Springs, somewhere in the mountains," he said bluntly. "That's all I know of the matter. I hope you will find him all right there. His trip ought to be very proud of you."

Dorothy caught her hand from her breast in a little gesture of exaltation, and the expression on her face was a wonderful thing to see.

"You'll go?"

"In the morning," Senator Rexhill answered.

Eager as Dorothy was to reach the big pine with her message, she could not leave without giving Helen a glance of triumph as made her winces.

Then, hurrying, to her pony, she rode rapidly out of town into the black night which cloaked the trail leading to the pine. She knew that her mother would be waiting for her, and anxious, but the minutes were too precious now to be wasted even on her mother. She did not know what pill Gordon might be in, and her first duty was to him. She was almost wither with anxiety lest the counter should not be at his post, but he was there when she dashed up to the pine.

"Take me to Mr. Trowbridge. Quick!" she panted.

"He's somewhere between Bald Knob and Hatchersburg," the man explained, knocking the ashes from his pipe. "It's some dark, too, miss, for riding in this country. Can't you wait until morning?"

"I can't wait one second. I have found out where Mr. Wade is, and I mean to be with you all when you find him."

"You have, eh?" The man, who was one of Trowbridge's punchers, swung into his saddle. "That being so, we'd get there if this here night was bright cool."

BACK ACHE TERRIBLY

Mrs. McMahon Tells How She Found Relief by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Chatham, Ont.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a run-down condition after the birth of my baby boy. I had terrible pains and backache, and was tired and weak, not fit to do my work and care for my three little children. One day I received your little book and read it, and gave up taking the medicine I had been taking the Vegetable Compound. I feel much better now and am not ashamed to tell what it has done for me. I recommend it to any woman I think feels as I do."

Mrs. J. R. McMahon, 153 Harvey St., Chatham, Ont.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been nearly fifty years restoring ailing women to health and strength. It relieves the troubles which cause such symptoms as backache, painful periods, irregularities, tired, worn-out feelings and nervousness. This is shown again and again by such letters as Mrs. McMahon writes, as well as by one woman telling another. These women know, and are willing to tell others, what it did for them; therefore, it is surely worth your trial.

Women who suffer should write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Cobourg, Ontario, for a free copy of Lydia E. Pinkham's "Private Book" upon "Aliments Peculiar to Women."

CHAPTER XVII.

A Rescue and a Vigilance Committee
At the end of an hour, or so, the lion-wilderness and Wade thought he had seen the last of it. He began to pace up and down the fissure once more, for this time his shirt was damp with perspiration, set flowing by the nervous strain he had been under, and he was not getting any better. He had just begun to warm up, when he heard the animal retreating. He caught his breath again, the cavern was but the lion had evidently lost the zest for such impossible prey. It walked about and sniffed at the edge of the fissure for some minutes; then it sneaked off into the timber with a cat-like whinny.

The exhausted ranchman kept his feet as long as he could, but when the first rays of the morning sun cast purple shadows into the depths of the hole, he could no longer keep awake. With his hands, he drifted the lion's head, and he was fast asleep. The Texan performed this service by deftly dropping a small stone upon the sleeping man's face.

"I just stepped over to inquire what you'd like for breakfast this morning," he said with a grin. "Not that it matters much, 'cause the dumb-waller downed where you are, ain't waitin' to-day, but it's manner, kinder, to ask."

Wade looked up at him grimly, but said nothing. Just awake as he was, his healthy stomach clamored for food, but since none would be given him, he knew that he might as well try to be patient.

"Mebbe you'd like to step over to our hotel an' take your meals, eh?" The Texan went on, after a short pause. "I've got a pot of coffee blin' an' a mess o' bacon fryin'."

He grinned sardonically. "How'd you like me to give you some o' this here carburetted stuff, while you're waitin'?"

"I ain't no great shucks as an entertainer, but I'll do what I can, Mebebe, you'd like to know how I happen to catch you that clump on the head yesterday?"

"I was in the low branches of a thick pine where you was moseyin' along. You was that busy watchin' the ground, you never thought to raise your eyes o' yours. I just reached down and lammed you good with a pile o' sticks, here you see, an' an' an' sound as a beetle in a log. Here you'll stay, too, likely, unless you get some grub, and I did think of that. These dumbwaller'll get to run in."

"It's a shame, too, if you ask me, 'cause a man needs his grub, and four squares a day in this here climate."

"How much do you want to give me a hand out of here, Neale?" the cattleman demanded abruptly, tired of listening to the ranchman's monotonous drawl; and after all the chance was worth taking.

"Eyes of the Texan glittered. "Get the money on you?"

"You'd get the money all right," "Sure, sure, I know, but you can't get it. I'd just hold my gun on you, an' you'd toss the roll up here, without puttin' me to no trouble o' givin' you no hand."

He chuckled in appreciation of his own humor. "But I know you ain't got it on you, you frisked you down yonder in the timber—an' I don't deal in no promises. This here is a cash game. If I thought that"

He whirled about suddenly, looking behind him and seemed to listen for an instant; then his hand dropped to the gun at his hip. He never drew the weapon, however, for with a horrible facial grimace, as his body contorted under the impact of a bullet, he threw his arms into the air and reeled over the edge of the hole. A second afterward the report of a rifle came to Wade's ears.

"Hello!" the rancher shouted, springing from under the Texan's falling body. The instant it struck the sand, Wade snatched Neale's revolver from his holster and waited for him to try to rise; but he did not move. A bloody froth stained the lips, while a heavier stain on his shirt, just under the heart, told where the bullet had struck. The man was dead.

"Hello! Hello!" Wade shouted repeatedly, and discharged the revolver into the sand. He realized that, although a friend must have fired the rifle, there was nothing to show where he was.

"Hello!" The hall was answered by the newcomer, who, thus guided, pushed aside the spot until his voice was near at hand. "Hello!"

"Hello! Come on!" The prisoner threw his hand up out of the hole. "Here I am!"

The next moment light Santry, with tear-stained, downy his weather-beaten cheeks, was bending over the edge of the fissure with down-stretched hands. Beneath his self-control the old man was soft-hearted as a woman, and in his delight he now made no attempt to restrain himself.

"Thank Gawd for this minute!" he exclaimed. "Give me your hands, boy! I ain't reachin' 'em if I stretch a little an' you jump." Wade did so and was drawn up out of the hole.

"Thank Gawd! Thank Gawd!" the old fellow kept exclaiming, patting his employer on the back. "Didn't hurt you much, did it?"

Before Wade could answer, a patter of hoofs caused him to turn, as Dorothy slipped from Gypsy's bare back and ran toward him. She stumbled when she had almost reached him, and he caught her in his arms.

"Are you all right? Oh, your head! It hurt—see, the blood!" She clung to him and searched his face with her eyes, while he tried to soothe her.

"It's nothing, just a bad bruise, but how—?" He checked the question upon his lips. "We mustn't stay here. Moran may have."

"There ain't nobody here. I wish to Gawd he was here. I'd—" Santry's face was twisted with rage. "Cause," he added, "I knew it was him, so I Lem Trowbridge, but he come right smack through their camp, and there was nobody there. This here shows that I plugged him, but he was the only one. I got him, I reckon."

"Yes," Wade answered simply, as he watched three men from the Trowbridge ranch ride up to them. "Where's Lem?"

Dorothy explained that she had set out to find him in company with the man she had met at the big pine; but on the way they had met Santry and the three cowboys. One of the men had then ridden on to Bald Knob after Trowbridge, while the rest had come straight to Coyote Springs. She tried to speak quietly, but she could not keep the song of happlings out of her voice, or the lure out of her eyes.

"Then you did this, too?" Wade wrung her hands and looked at her proudly. "But how—? I don't understand."

"I'll tell you, when we're in the saddle," she said shyly. "There's so much to tell."

Santry's ranch owner threw his arm fondly across the shoulders of his foreman. "You, too, and Lem. I've got all my friends to thank. Say, dig a grave for this fellow, Neale. There was a lion around here last night, and I'd have to have him get Neale, had he been there."

His voice became crisp with determination. "I want up Trowbridge and ask him to pass the word for everybody to meet at the ranch, as soon as possible. There's going to be open war here in the valley from now on." He turned again to Dorothy. "Dorothy, I'm going to take you right on home with me."

"Oh, but—" The gleam in his eyes made her pause. She was too good to have found him safe, besides, to wish to cross him in whatever might be his purpose.

"No buts about it. I'll send for your mother, too, of course. I won't be any place for either of you until this business is settled, George."

He called to one of the three cowboys, who rode over to him. "I suppose I'll be all right for you to take orders from."

"I reckon so."

"I want you to ride into Crawling Water. Get backboard there and bring Mrs. Purnell out to my place. Tell her that her daughter is here, and she'll come. Come now, little girl."

He caught Dorothy in his arms and lifted her on to Gypsy's back. "All right, boys, and much obliged." He waved the little cavalcade on his way, and swung into the saddle on his prize horse, which Santry had provided.

On the way down through the timber, Dorothy modestly told him of the part she had played, with the help of Lem Trowbridge. He listened with amusement to the story of her generalship, and was encouraged to hear that the Rexhills were probably already out of Crawling Water, for that left him a free hand to act against Moran.

This time the agent must suffer the penalty of his misdeeds, but greater even than his pleasure at that thought, was Wade's gratitude to Dorothy for all she had done for him. He was filled with a wonderful tenderness for her, which made him see in the play of her facial expression; the shy lowering of her lashes; the color which ebbed and flowed in her cheeks; the free use which she made of her red lips, a greater fascination than she had ever before exerted over him.

There, in the fissure, he had expected never to be at her side again, and now that he was so, and knew what she had come to mean to him, the old friendship between them seemed no longer possible; certainly not from his side. He felt, in its place, all the confusion of a lover, anxious to speak and yet struck dumb with clumsiness and the fear, never absent no matter what the degree of encouragement, that his suit might not find favor with the lady when put into words.

"You're a wonderful girl," he burst out, at last, with a heartiness that, in bringing a flush to her cheeks, made the old phrase seem new to her ears.

"I'm not at all," she denied shyly. "I just had to do it, that was all. People always do what they have to do."

"They do not. Lots of them can't, but you—you're always capable. That's what makes you so wonderful. Dorothy," he pulled his horse closer to hers, meaning to put his arm around her, but he dared not attempt it when her dress brushed his sleeves.

"Yes!" She was trembling now far more than when she had faced the Rexhills. "What is it?"

"His arm dropped to his side, and he—"

Not Sufficient Time For Alberta Wheat Pool To Operate This Year

Calgary.—It probably will not be possible to organize a voluntary wheat pool in time to handle Alberta's crop this year, but a pool will be formed, it was decided by the Board of Directors of the United Farmers of Alberta, according to an official statement issued after the conference by W. J. Jackman, of Brimmer, Alberta.

Outside of the official statement, no comment could be obtained, both H. W. Wood, U.F.A. President, and J. E. Brownlee, Attorney-General, declining to make any statement.

The official statement says that after two days of careful deliberation, it has been decided to organize a voluntary wheat pool in Alberta, and a committee was named to give effect to the decision as quickly as possible. Having in mind the various problems which must be worked out before such a pool can be placed on an efficient working basis, and the shortness of time before the crop it is not thought possible to complete the plans to have a pool functioning for this year's crop, the statement says:

W. J. Jackman, Brimmer; Stephen Lunn, Pincher Creek; and A. R. Brown, Westlock, comprise the Wheat Pool Committee.

Winnipeg.—Wheat marketing on a co-operative basis was discussed by the Canadian Council of Agriculture in session here. The meeting was held in keeping with the decision reached at the Toronto conference some time ago and had not been specially called. It was stated, as a direct result of the failure of Alberta and Saskatchewan to establish a compulsory wheat board in connection with the 1923 crop.

Famous French Ace Killed

Crashes to Death During Test of New Machine

Paris.—Captain Duellin, a French "Ace," met death at Villa Coublay when his machine dived out of control. Everything in the machine had been sacrificed to speed, and the suggestion has been made that the unfortunate airman was suffocated by the rush of air. The machine was undergoing tests for the first time and had climbed to 500 feet. Captain Duellin had a splendid war record, having brought down twenty-one German planes.

A few days before his death he is reported to have remarked: "I feel a marvel," but the thought is always present, "when I break my neck it will be well broken."

U.S. Bars British Cattle

Foot and Mouth Disease Makes Embargo Necessary

Washington.—Continuation of the ban on the importation of livestock from Great Britain, because of the persistence of the foot and mouth disease there has been announced by the Department of Agriculture. A new outbreak of the disease on June 21, it was stated, has caused abandonment of plans for lifting the embargo.

Willing to Table U.S. Request

London.—Prime Minister Baldwin told a questioner in the House of Commons that he was perfectly willing to lay on the table of the House the terms of the United States proposal asking for powers to seize outside the three-mile limit ships alleged to be engaged in smuggling intoxicants, provided the consent of the United States could be obtained. Steps will be taken, it is stated, to obtain this consent.

Alberta Natural Resources

Expected Final Settlement Will Be Reached at Meeting in August

Edmonton, Alta.—Alberta natural resources will be up again for discussion between Provincial and Federal Government heads in Ottawa about August 6. Premier Greenfield has received advice from the clerk of the Privy Council that that date will be open for another conference with Hon. Mackenzie King and his ministers, and it is expected that the British Columbia railway freight case will be dealt with at that time.

It had been thought that an earlier date for the natural resources case would be set, the prime minister's original intention having been to call a meeting at the capital immediately after the prorogation of parliament, but owing presumably to the length of the session, it has now been decided to give it a special hearing in early August.

Premier Greenfield and Attorney-General Brownlee will attend the conference, in the hope this time of finally settling the question. Meanwhile the way is clear for the attorney-general and Hon. R. G. Reid to make their co-operative marketing trip to the coast states, on which they expect to leave shortly. The premier is also trying to arrange a July date for the coal conference still pending, at which Sir Henry Thornton is to be present.

For Voluntary Wheat Pool

Saskatchewan Farmers' Union Decide To Take Action

Saskatoon.—Efforts of the farmers' union were devoted entirely to ways and means of calling a conference of business men and farmers for the purpose of organizing a drive similar to the victory loan drives, to establish a voluntary contract pool for marketing the grain of Western Canada.

A committee met the Saskatoon Board of Trade and received the assurance of that body that it would assist in calling such a conference, provided it had the approval of more than one provincial farmers' organization.

As a result of this decision by the Board of Trade, the Farmers' Union passed the following resolution:

"This convention resolves that a conference be called forthwith in this province on the matter of a contract pool not later than July 12, and that we communicate with the Hon. J. A. Maharg to get the consent of the Saskatchewan Grain with this union in asking Premier Dunning to call such a conference."

Cannot Build Branch Lines

Officials Say No Qualifications In Bill Precluding Construction

Ottawa.—According to information here, the new branch lines of British Columbia were contracted for before the Canadian National branch lines bill was brought up in the House. In some cases they are not affected by the Senate six months' hold, and will be proceeded with.

Ottawa.—Officials of the Department of Railways and Canals stated positively that there had been no qualifications in the bill which provided for branch line constructions on the Canadian National Railways and that the action of the Senate in killing the bill precluded construction of branch lines in British Columbia as well as the other provinces.

Abolish Land Sales Register

Premier Baldwin Contends Expense Is Not Necessary

London.—The House of Commons by a vote of 260 to 187 agreed to the abolition of the registration of land sales and leases after this step had been opposed by Austen Chamberlain, Lloyd George, H. H. Asquith and Ramsay MacDonald.

Lloyd George pointed out that each of the Dominion had a complete register. Premier Baldwin contended that registration was an unnecessary expense.

Plan to Wreck War Memorial

Montreal.—An attempt was made to blow up the Colonel Gault monument in St. Hilaire, erected to the memory of St. Hilaire men who fell in the war.

A man of suspicious appearance was seen loitering around prior to the explosion and he is believed to have been the tool of a gang which damaged the monument a year ago.

Sentence Irish Rebel

London.—Art O'Brien, President of the Gaelic League in London, and five of his colleagues who were released from internment in Ireland under a court decision upholding the regularity of their deportation from England, were found guilty of sedition and conspiracy. O'Brien was sentenced to two years and the others one each.

Complete Closure Of Cape Breton Mines As Result Of General Strike

Sydney, N.S.—A final tightening of the union lines has marked the completion of the first round of the general strike of Cape Breton coal miners and steel workers. Both company and union headquarters agreed that the walkout was 100 per cent.

The only place where union workers remained on the job was at New Waterford power house, and they were supplied there because the station supplied light, power and water to their own houses in the town.

The Dominion Coal Company have diverted 12 of their coal steamers in their Cape Breton-St. Lawrence coal trade to Hampton Roads, Virginia. The company has large coal contracts to fill and they state that their inability to fill these with Cape Breton coal leaves them the alternative of filling the orders with American coal.

With the miners of Cape Breton at ready out on sympathetic strike with the steel workers of Sydney, indications were that they had voted by a small majority to strike for the enforcement of the restoration of 1921 wage rates. This would mean a strike for that purpose concurrent with the present one. Should the final result show the vote against the wage principle it would not affect the present sympathetic strike.

The first interference with company property occurred at No. 2 colliery where pickets refused to allow switch engines to shut fuel coal into the boiler plant where officials were endeavoring to keep up steam for the fans and pumps. As a result the largest coal mine in Canada will be in the ordinary course of events be filled with gas and flooded within a few hours.

At the Sydney steel plant all work is suspended and the fires are banked. Troops and police are in Garrison there and, while there is some picketing by strikers, there have been no disorders since Sunday night.

In Cape Breton South every mine is closed down and closely picketed while officials are endeavoring to keep up steam for fans and pumps. In Cape Breton North, four major collieries are idle and officials are keeping up steam without interference.

A fire which has been burning in a bank of 165,000 tons of coal at New Aberdeen furnishes a serious feature of the situation for the British Empire Steel Corporation. It seems improbable that any of this coal can be moved until reinforcements of troops arrive to guard railway lines.

Prize Winners At Brandon

List Includes Holsteins Entered By White Farms, Lockwood, Sask.

Brandon.—Woodland Aggie owned by W. K. Elgie, of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., has been awarded the senior and grand championship in female Holstein section of the Manitoba Provincial Exhibition, while Morocena Aberkirk Lady, shown by F. Hilleker of Norwick, Ont., won the junior and reserve grand championship. The White Farms, Lockwood, Sask., were also in the prize list in the Holstein classes.

The Ness herd from Dewinton, Alta., won in most of the classes for Ayrshires and carried off many of the group prizes. The grand champion female, however, was Springburn Mischel, shown by A. C. Wells, of Sarnia, E.C., and the junior and reserve grand champion was Fairlight May 6, shown by Morton, of Fairlight, Sask.

Lessons From Hog Grading.

A few hours at the elbow of a hog grader at one of the abattoirs or stock yards in Canada would be time well spent. One may learn much about hog grading from reading and conversation, but the lesson is much more impressive if one sees a shipment divided into separate lots according to grade, more especially if the shipment contains specimens from one's own farm.

A grader has three principal points to bear in mind—weight, length and form. Many hogs of ideal weight are assigned to the thick smooth group because they are too short for selects. Others may have the correct length and weight, but are so rough in shoulder as to put them outside the select section. One may doubt the justice of a grading report if he has never witnessed grading in practice, but he is unlikely to do so if he sees the work done by an official grader.

It is equally instructive to go through the packing plant and to be shown collections of sides made from hogs of the different market grades. The Wiltshire side is of definite form, and of weights ranging between certain limits. The characteristics of the side that brings the highest prices are well understood and the first grade of Wiltshire is obtainable only from a select bacon hog. Like No. 1 hard wheat, No. 1 cheese, No. 1 creamery butter or fancy fruit, the select hog is worth the higher price. A hog raiser will profit greatly by visiting a stockyard or an abattoir and seeing for himself the actual grading of a shipment of hogs.

CROPS and CAUTION

THE modern farmer, confronted by weather hazards on one side and marketing conditions on the other, is forced to act with caution if he is to come through the season successfully.

No one knows better than the farmer the necessity for conservation—the economical handling of time, material and money.

And no bank knows better than the Bank of Montreal how to co-operate with farmers to the end that their financial affairs and business interests shall be placed on a sound basis.

In the Crow's Nest

CROW'S NEST.
ON THE WAY TO CROW'S NEST—THE HIGHEST WOODEN BRIDGE IN THE WORLD.

Rolling up to the Crow's Nest Pass are olive green foothills without a tree upon them—natural cattle runs clothed with succulent short grass.
Here are seen occasional outcrops of rock, which in their four or five feet of height show all the characteristics of a mountain range; miniatures of the Rockies, with crag and precipice and col reproduced on the smallest scale.
With a bag of salt one could lay on glaciers, touch the peaks with white and have a toy range which any Eastern schoolteacher could set up in her classroom with advantage to herself and her pupils. Canadians east of Medicine Hat know too little about the construction of this Continent and about the glorious engineering of Nature.

Consider the Crow's Nest itself. The name brings before some of us a schedule of railway rates; to others, a series of coal mines. These are derivative impressions. The original Crow's Nest is a mountain rising to 9,000 feet and more above sea-level and visible for many miles. The rock-peak, as one looks from the foothills is set like a fuzzy, round crow's nest on a sky-line. Leading up to it are the olive-green billows fading into a soft, blue haze.

In the distance near the peak is a snow-white precipice, which they tell us is two miles wide and a mile high. It is all excellence and loveliness until one travels twenty miles farther. Then it pleases like the fangs of a wolf.
It is the rock-face of Turtle Mountain, cleft from top to bottom in 1906 to the destruction of the mining town of Frank.

To-day the whole valley, two miles wide, is a tempestuous chase of white stone blocks, some of them as big as a house, all with jagged edges and sharp corners. They are piled from fifty to one hundred feet high above the original valley level. The railway line climbs over the debris. Beneath it lies the broken city. On either side of the avalanche stand a few deserted houses, windows out, staring like skulls upon the newer town. The whole Erebus scene, but they are like to forget the more terrible fate of Frank when rock by millions of tons fell a mile out of the sky.

That Northern Alberta still has a lure for the homesteader is evidenced by the increased business which is being handled by the Edmonton Dominion Land Office. During May, 32 homesteads were filed upon, and in addition 13 soldiers' grants were also made. Patents applied for numbered fifty-one.

A MOTHER'S HEALTH NEEDS GREAT CARE

Care of Home and Children Often Causes a Breakdown

The woman at home, deep in household duties and the care of motherhood, needs occasional help to keep her in good health. The demands upon a mother's health are many and severe. Her own health and her children's welfare exact heavy tolls, while hurried meals, broken rest and much indoor living tend to weaken her constitution. No wonder that the woman at home is often indisposed through weakness. Headaches, backaches and nervousness. Too many women have grown to accept these ailments as a part of the lot of motherhood. But how many have varied as her health troubles are, the cause is simply and relief is at hand. As well, it is the woman's good blood that keeps her well; when it she must make her blood new to renew her health. The nursing mother more than any other woman in the world needs rich blood and plenty of it. There is one way to get this good blood so necessary to perfect health, and that is through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Mrs. W. T. Riley, R.R. No. 3, Apple Hill, Ont., has proved the great value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to mothers, and tells her story as follows: "Two years ago, after the birth of my boy, I came very weak and run down. Gradually I lost weight and energy until I was unable to do my household work. I could not sleep, my nerves would twitch and jump so that I arose in the morning with heavy aching limbs and head. Indigestion helped to make the misery worse, and my heart would palpitate terribly. I doctor steadily for a year without getting better, but just dragged along feeling that I would never be well again. But one lucky day on the advice of a friend, I began treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I have taken only six boxes, but I wish you could see the difference. I am now able to do my work, go about and enjoy myself. I feel so entirely like a new woman that I advise every weak or ailing woman to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I know they will get beneficial results."

If you are ailing, easily tired or depressed, it is a duty you owe yourself and your family to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial. What this medicine has done for others it will surely do for you. You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from any dealer in medicine, by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Another way to get on your feet is to use them on the sidewalk, instead of on the clutch and brake pedals.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Water Power Development

Big Saving of Coal is Effectuated Through Water Power in Canada

The water power now developed in Canada represents an investment of over $420,000,000, according to a report of the Water Powers Branch of the Department of the Interior. In 1940, should the rate of growth in installation during the past fifteen years be continued, this investment would have grown to over $1,190,000,000. The present development represents an annual equivalent of 26,700,000 tons of coal, which valued at $10 per ton, represents $267,000,000. In the year 1940 these annual figures, with the foregoing assumption, will have become 50,000,000 tons in quantity and $500,000,000 in value.

Household Hints

Valuable Recipes For the Busy Housewife

Times Rain-Pie

- 1 cup Sun-Maid seeded raisins.
- 3 tablespoons butter.
- 4 egg yolks.
- 1/4 cup dried currants.
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice.
- 1 pint apricot juice.

Sugar to taste.

Stir the raisins and currants in the apricot juice. Add the butter, egg yolks, lemon juice and sugar to taste. Put in a bowl that has been previously baked over with a meringue made with the whites of the eggs and four tablespoons of sugar.

Cream of Raisins

- 1 tablespoon gelatin, 1/4 cup milk.
- 2 tablespoons cold water, 1/4 cup sugar.
- 1/4 cup chopped Sun-Maid seeded raisins.
- 1/4 cup finely chopped nuts.

1 cup hot water, 2 stiffly beaten egg whites.

1 cup whipped cream.

Soften gelatin in cold water. Cook raisins and hot water slowly 10 min. Add milk and add sugar and gelatin. Stir until dissolved and add raisins mixture. Chill. When mixture begins to thicken add nuts and egg whites and fold in cream. Mix thoroughly and pour into molds. Serve with yellow sauce.

When Canada Had Slavery

Until 1793 Importation of Slaves Was Not Forbidden

The following advertisement appeared in a Montreal paper of June 2, 1778: "Ran away on the 14th inst, a slave belonging to the widow Duffy Desmurs aged about 45 years, dressed in striped cotton of the ordinary cut of tolerable stoutness. Whoever will bring her back will receive a reward of $6 and will be repaid any costs. The importation of slaves into Canada was forbidden in 1793. In 1805 there were 142 slaves in the Montreal district. In 1811 the slave trade was forbidden under the Union Jack. In 1853 the last slavery was abolished when the British Government voted $180,000,000 to buy the slaves in the West Indies after seven years further apprenticeship. Gladstone made his first speech in Parliament on this bill, defending the treatment of slaves on his father's West Indian plantation. He favored gradual emancipation.

Twin Evils

Disease and Poverty Appear to Go Hand in Hand

Disease and poverty are no closely related that the prevention of disease and sickness would mean the practical elimination of poverty, according to Bailey B. Burritt, General Director of the New York Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor.

"Most poverty," said Mr. Burritt, addressing a general session of the National Conference of Social Work, "now being dealt with by family welfare organizations is inextricably related to families in which illness is a permanent factor. A six months' report of the association indicates that in 3,785 families under care the visitors and nurses listed 5,613 separate health problems which they had to deal with including tuberculosis in 529 families, cardiac problems in 163 families, mental or nervous disease or mental defectiveness in 298 families, rickets in 236 families, etc., in a decreasing miscellaneous group."

Disease and poverty are twin evils. Intelligent direction of effort will lessen, if not eradicate, them.—Buffalo Express.

CHOLERA INFANTUM A FATAL DISEASE OF CHILDREN

Cholera infantum, or summer complaint of children is one of the most dangerous bowel complaints during the summer months. It begins with watery diarrhoea, the stomach becomes irritated, very often accompanied by vomiting and purging and the matter excreted from the stomach has a bilious appearance. The child rapidly loses flesh, is soon reduced to languor and prostration, and in a great many cases death ensues.

Mothers, if any of your children become sick with cholera infantum do not unduly worry your health, perhaps their life, by experimenting with some new and untried remedy; get one that has stood the test of time; one that will quickly effect the vomiting, purging and the diarrhoea. This you will find in Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, a remedy that has been on the market for the past 78 years.

Mrs. W. A. Harrison, 10 Elevator Court, Halifax, N.S., writes: "Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry saved the lives of three of my children when all other remedies failed. It stopped the vomiting and terrible diarrhoea, and when they were troubled, I always keep a bottle of it in hand in case of emergency."

"Dr. Fowler's" is a bottle put up by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

WORLD HAPPENINGS BRIEFLY TOLD

According to the News of the World, Lloyd George will probably visit America at the beginning of October. The Inter-Parliamentary Association will hold its 21st annual session in Copenhagen early in August.

F. J. Dixon, leader of the Labor group in the Manitoba Legislature, and one of Winnipeg's ten members, has resigned his seat in the House.

The United States Government closed its books for the fiscal year 1925 with a surplus of approximately $310,000,000.

By the bloodless capture of Gen. Papellay and his staff of 100 officers, the last resistance of the "Whites" to the Soviet regime has been overcome. J. W. Brocher, of Moose Jaw, captured premier honors for Marquis wheat, hard spring wheat, white oats, fall rye and flax at the provincial fair at Brandon.

Great Britain offers an unrestricted market for Canadian cattle of the feeder type, the offspring of Hon. Duncan Marshall, Commissioner of Agriculture, who has just returned from some four months study of the overseas situation.

Catarhal Conditions

Catarhal, a local disease, is influenced by constitutional conditions. It therefore is not a local disease. Treatment. HALL'S CATARHAL MEDICINE is taken into the eye through the conjunctiva and the mucous surfaces of the eye. It gives the patient strength by improving the general health and assists Nature in doing its work.

Miller's Worm Powders act mildly and without injury to the child, and there can be no doubt of their deadly effect upon worms. They have been in successful use for a long time and are recognized as a leading preparation for the purpose. They have proved their power in numerous cases and have given relief to many children, who, but for the good effects of this compound, would have continued weak and enfeebled.

The Hope of the World

Necessity For Friendly Relations Between U.S. and Britain

The world is better-off because America and the British Commonwealth are in good relations. It is far better off, because there is a United States of America, and because there are states such as England-Scotland-Wales, the Irish Free State, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, with which Americans can trade and visit in all safety. Those who would fawn on Britain are as contemptible as those who cringe for social favor or money or political aid. But those who would, needlessly and for petty ends, put our good relations to jeopardy, play with such fire as that which might burn us, are as contemptible as those who cringe for social favor or money or political aid. OFFICER COULD HARDLY STAND UP

Arthur Tache, 124 Russell St., East, Montreal, a well-known policeman on a busy traffic thoroughfare, is another who upholds the merits of Tanlac with his personal endorsement.

"My experience with Tanlac has been of such great satisfaction," said Officer Tache, "that I am glad to give out the facts in my case for what they may be worth to others."

"I suffered from rheumatism in my legs during a period of six months, and was in such bad shape that I could hardly stand on my feet."

"A friend told me about Tanlac and besides I saw statements from so many people praising it that I determined to try the medicine myself. It's a fact, the treatment had rid me of rheumatism completely and has me feeling perfectly well in every way now. Yes, Tanlac has been so convincing in my case I am glad to give it my highest endorsement."

Wonderful Value For $2.00.

It is a source of constant wonder to publishers the world over how The Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal can be printed and mailed to any part of Canada for the small subscription price of two dollars a year.

Some other papers may quote a lower subscription price but they do not contain one fifth, nor in many cases not even one-tenth, of the reading matter published each week by the Family Herald and Weekly Star. People everywhere are now selecting their reading material with greater discrimination than in the past. Instead of being loaded with a lot of second rate papers and magazines, they are now saving money by discarding the chaff and subscribing to the Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal—the one big all-round journal that provides in its seventy-two pages every week an ample volume and variety of reading to satisfy every member of the family.

In addition to being the best informed, most practical and helpful paper for farmers, the Family Herald and Weekly Star provides the best of serial and short stories, complete departments for women and young folks, powerful editorials on the most important topics of the day, a complete weekly digest of world news, in fact a veritable library of information, entertainment and inspiration. On account of its clean, wholesome and helpful character, its phenomenal value and powerful influence for good, it is not too much to say that the Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal should be in every Canadian home.
